

The Daily Courant.

Monday, June 5 1704

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated June 6.

Venice, May 24.

THE Imperialists continue to fortifie themselves in Ostiglia and their other Posts on this side the Po. General Davia is returning into Tyrol, to receive 3000 Recruits, and conduct them to Ostiglia. They write from Piemont, that General Vaubonne will be sent to the Castle of Milan there to be kept confin'd, on pretence that he is of French Extraction. 'Tis confirm'd from Modena, that Bersello is to be demolish'd. The Corps of Prince Charles of Vaudemont is carry'd to Ferrara, and will be sent to Nanci. His Entrails were buried at Ostiglia, in the Church of the Capuchins, and his Heart will be sent to the Princess his Mother at Milan, whence they write, that a Courier dispatch'd from Revere having brought advice thither of the Death of that Prince, Cardinal Archinto Archbishop of Milan communicated the sad News to the Prince and Princess of Vaudemont, whom it struck with so deep a Sorrow, that it was fear'd they would have died upon the Spot; and that they still continue so overwhelm'd with Grief for the loss of their only Son, (whose great Merit is universally acknowledg'd) that they are inconsolable.

From the Paris Gazette, dated May 31.

Casal, May 17. The Duke of Savoy's Army continues intrench'd behind Crescentino, in an inaccessible Camp, between the Po and the Doria, and under the Cannon of Verrua. The said Army is compos'd of but 15000 Men, because the Enemy have been oblig'd to send back into the fortified Places the Garrisons they had drawn out of them to augment their Forces when they lay encamp'd 2 Leagues from Casal, between Balsola and Villanova. They have put about 5000 Men into Vercelli; and 3000 into Verrua, whither the Imperialists have sent 5 Battalions, and 8 to Vercelli. The Subjects of the Duke of Savoy are in a great Consternation, being oblig'd to pay Contributions, and to furnish Subsistence to both Armies. The Duke of Vendome fortifies his Camp at Fontanetto near Trino, in order to observe the Enemies and make such Detachments as he shall judge necessary; his Army being superior to that of the Enemies, without reckoning the flying Camp of 5 or 6000 Men commanded by Count Albergotti on the other side of the Po, with whom the Duke of Vendome maintains a Communication by a Bridge which he has caus'd to be laid over that River at Gabian. 4000 Men of the Militia of the Montferrat are posted on the rising Grounds in the Neighbourhood of Verrua.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated June 6.

From the Duke of Savoy's Camp at Crescentino, May 19. A few days ago Colonel Ebergeni was commanded by the Duke of Lorraine to make an Excursion with 200 Horse and 100 Hussars towards the Sesia. In his return to the Camp he fell in with a Party of French Hussars in the Neighbourhood of Morans, who attack'd him first very warmly, but he repuls'd them so vigorously that 60 of them were kill'd on the Spot; the Captain was wounded, the Lieutenant and the Cornet kill'd, and the rest were pursued to the Gates of Balsola. One Standard, several of their Horses, and 3 Prisoners were taken. By a Trumpeter from the Duke of Vendome, we have receiv'd the News of the Death of Prince Charles Thomas of Vaudemont. The Enemies are embarking some heavy Cannon and Mortars at Casal; With what design we cannot comprehend, seeing it does not appear they are in a Condition to undertake any Siege, his Royal Highness having made such Dispositions on all sides as must in all probability frustrate their Attempts. The Grand Prior of France makes pressing Instances to the Duke of Vendome, his Brother, to send him a Reinforcement of a certain Number of Troops; The Duke expects the Return of a Courier that he has sent to Court, before he determine whether to comply with his Brother or not: His Army is at present compos'd of 45 Battalions and 65 Squadrons. The French having been in Motion for some days past about Suza, his Royal Highness has sent Mr. de Blagnac with 3 Battalions to reinforce the Garrison of that Place.

From the Paris Gazette a la Main, dated May 31.

Paris, May 31. At the Request of the Pope, and upon the pressing Instances of Cardinal Barberino, the Duke of Modena's Uncle, the King has yielded to allow that Duke 40000 Crowns yearly out of the Revenues of the Modeneze; on Condition that he write a Letter with his own Hand, therein declaring that it was not by his Order his Envoy at Vienna acknowledg'd the Archduke for King of Spain, that he disapproves that Proceeding of his Envoy, and that during this War he will in no wise interest himself in the Emperor's Affairs. The Duke de la Feuillade who commands our Forces on the side of Savoy, having drawn together an Army of 20 Battalions and 12 Squadrons, is going to lay Siege to Suza; and Monsieur de Lapara is gone to take upon him the Direction of the Works.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated June 6.

Chamberi, May 26. The Troops that block up Montmeillan, being very much incommoded by the Sallies made by the Garrison of that Place, have endeavour'd to ruin the Bridge, but were repuls'd, with the loss of near 200 Men kill'd or wounded.

From the Paris Gazette, dated May 31.

Paris, May 31. Letters from Grenoble of the 20th advise, that the Enemies having been oblig'd wholly to abandon Savoy, Montmeillan is again block'd up. The Blockade is commanded by the Marquess of Marilly, who has under him 7 Battalions, a Regiment of Dragoons, and some Militia. He has divided these Troops into 3 Bodies, and assign'd them 3 different Posts; in such a manner that nothing can get in or out of the Place. The 13th in the Night, he caus'd the Stone Bridge on the Isere to be blown up, because lying under the Cannon of Montmeillan it was not tenable.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated June 6.

Paris, May 29. An Advice-Boat arriv'd at Rochelle, has brought News from the Squadron commanded by the Count de Thoulouse, which confirms, that they had undergone a great Storm on the Coast of Brittany, tany, and that 2 Men of War were separated from the rest of the Squadron and had not rejoyn'd them when this Advice-Boat left them. 'Tis said the Count has written to his Majesty, to desire that all things may be in a Readiness against his arrival at Thoulon, that he may put to Sea again from thence without delay; 'tis reported that he will stop at Cadiz; whether Monsieur du Quesne is to repair with 5 large Men of War, design'd to go to America. The Duke of Berry will not make the Campaign this Year, as was reported. The last Advices from Italy told us, the Duke of Vendome would invest Vercelli the 25th of this Month. The Marquis de Bedmar being extremely afflicted with the Gout, has desir'd leave to retire to Brussels; and 'tis said Marshal Boufflers will go and take upon him the Command of the Army in the Netherlands.
